Digital Technology in Physical Education

Global Perspectives

Edited by Jeroen Koekoek, Windesheim University of Applied Sciences, the Netherlands and Ivo van Hilvoorde, Vrije Universiteit and Windesheim University of Applied Sciences, the Netherlands.

Digital technologies have the potential to transform teaching and learning in physical education. This book offers a series of innovative, practice-oriented and critical perspectives on the application of digital technology in physical education. Organised around four key themes – theory development, models-based practice, assessment, and skill acquisition – the book focuses on core pedagogical principles rather than just passing technological fads, and asks how digital technology can be incorporated into daily classroom practice. This is essential reading for any student, researcher, teacher or coach with an interest in physical education, sport pedagogy or youth sport.
